Behavior v.s. Structure
A Tale of Two Values

- Behavior - a function spec, or requirements document from stakeholders

  - Urgent, but not always particularly important

- Architecture - structure, aiming to minimize the cost of changes

  - change: scope v.s. shape

  - a good architecture should be shape agnostic

  - Important but never particularly urgent

- Both should be focused and treated at the equal priority

Programming Paradigms